Pale blossoms on branch, probably flowering plum.
Attributed by catalogue card to Tsou I Kwei.

花枝一枝 (Signature on painting somewhat different from this as given by Hirth scraps. p. 401)

Hirth says of painter "He held a principle that in representations vegetable world, fineness of execution not adopted & create impression of real nature. (Just as in) the flowers are certainly rough as compared with Yin Shou-ping."

The painting is on silk in a pale pink which has been broken down & a black metallic look. It is executed in a very careful but not tight manner & well composed. (over) it is a quiet painting of no great strength or distinction but it has charm.
