

LIPI GAME

A boy's game. The disk-like seeds are placed in a line, two or more for each player, and the contestants shoot at them from a distance of about twenty feet. Each player keeps the seeds he knocks down. Should any remain standing after the first shots the boys shoot again from the place where their disks have stopped.

The seed used as shooter is held between the thumb and first finger of the left hand, and shot out with the first finger of the right hand.
