Field Columbian Museum.

No 5974
Country

People

Locality: Batavia, La Paz

Name: Blackwood, dressed, wooden pop. from old cabinet

Collection: Jaffee

Where Placed

Notes: 13

Acc. 45
Conical knitted caps are woven by Aymara Indian men of the wool of the llama, less often of the sheep. The most common are in black and white, the better ones in color. The region is cold and the caps are a welcome protection to the head and ears.