

*126. Chinese Vase Stand of Layered
Lacquer*

A fine example of what the Japanese call KURIBORI lacquer; 13 layers of alternating red and brown lacquer can be seen in the sides of the grooves. A paper-thin wooden foundation is presumably inside, but at least 90% of the thickness is due to lacquer. Late Ming Dynasty, ca. 1550-1650.