

TREADMILL OR RICE-POUNDER

Model of glazed pottery for burial with a farmer. These pounders, still used in China and Japan, are operated with the feet of a laborer who steadies himself by grasping a wooden framework erected over the treadle.

For illustrations and details consult Laufer, Chinese Pottery of the Han Dynasty, p. 38.

HAN PERIOD

118226